

Dustin R. Fraidenburg, MD
Assistant Professor
Director, Pulmonary Hypertension Program
Department of Medicine
Division of Pulmonary, Critical Care, Sleep and Allergy
University of Illinois at Chicago
Chicago, IL

Dr. Dustin Fraidenburg practices in the Division of Pulmonary, Critical Care, Sleep and Allergy at UIC Health. Dr. Fraidenburg treats a wide range of respiratory diseases both in the hospital and outpatient settings. He has clinical expertise in the areas of pulmonary hypertension and advanced lung diseases. After completing his medical degree from Wayne State University in Detroit, MI, Dr. Fraidenburg completed a residency in Internal Medicine at the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) followed by a fellowship in Pulmonary and Critical Care Medicine at UIC. Dr. Fraidenburg has published extensively on the topic of pulmonary arterial hypertension including several articles in peer reviewed journals as well as book chapters.